

A close-up portrait of Heather Hancock, a woman with long, wavy, light brown hair and glasses, smiling warmly. She is wearing a dark-colored top. The background is a bookshelf filled with various books, some of which are standing upright and others are lying flat. The lighting is soft and focused on her face.

Heather Hancock

AUTHOR-EDITOR-POET

Heather

Hancock

Editor and Writer

Heather has been writing her entire life. She's currently an Editor and Writer for Coffee House Writers, with short stories, serial stories, and poems published on the online site. In December 2020 she had three poems and two short stories published in the Coffee House Writer's Anthology book 1: NonFiction & Poetry and Book 2. In February 2021 her nonfiction article was published in The Survivor Memoirs: Childhood Sexual Abuse. Her work as a contributing author in Called To Intercede was released January 1, 2022. The book has already hit Amazon's bestseller list. Heather is currently editing her faith-based novel. She lives with her husband and cat, Willow, in a small town in southwestern Saskatchewan, Canada.